Oratory Is National Game in New Regime Says Charles Edward Russell

This is another of the series of articles by Charles Edward Russell, staff writer of The Tribune, who has just returned from Russia, where he spent three months as a member of the official United States commission to the new Russian government.

By CHARLES EDWARD RUSSELL.

(Copyright, 1917, by the Newspaper Enterprise Association.)

"The people of the United States are not in favor of this war."

"The government of the United States is controlled absolutely by the munition makers. For the sake of profits the munition makers wanted the United States to go into the war. That is the only reason why the United States is in it."

"The people of the United States are utterly opposed to the war and wish to make peace at once. They are about to overthrow their government. Then they will make peace with Germany and the war every where will come to an end."

"The other day in the United States senate a resolution was introduced for peace. You see—I told you. I know what the people of America think. I am an American myself and I know they are dead against this war."

These are a few samples of the stuff dinned incessantly into the ears of Russians by a thousand professional trouble makers, anarchists and the like, returned from America with American passports in their pockets to try to win the situation for Germany.

This sort of stuff and worse. Sometimes they tell the Russians that conditions in the United States are far more intolerable than they were in Russia under the czars, that the people are more oppressed and miserable than whatever else the Russians do with their freedom they must be on their guard against establishing any government in the least like that of the United States.

"The United States has ruined Cuba and Mexico," they say. "It has enslaved its own people. It has now sent commissions over here to prepare the way to enslave you. Above everything else, be on your guard against America. I know what it is. I am an American myself. Look at my American passport!"

What They Say. "The United States will never do any fighting in this war. Do not be deceived. The United States is only bluffing. It doesn't intend to fight. The munition makers only want some fat orders for guns and things and then the United States will make peace with Germany. That is what you ought to do if you don't want to get left. Now is the time to make peace. What do you want to fight for? England and France are all in and the United States is only fooling you. Everybody knows that in the United States. I just came from there. I am an American. I know."

The great Field of Mars, the ancient parade ground of Petrograd, is the forum and huge debating school of the new democracy. Every Sunday you can see there 300,000 or 300,000 people in groups around the speakers, listening to oratory. Oratory is the Russian national game.

These agents of mischief, recently returned from America, run from meeting to meeting, reiterating the lies I have quoted above.

There is no chance to deny that they do an infinitely better job of propaganda in the United States and Germany, which directs their efforts, judged with perfect accuracy of the harm they could do. Nothing better for the Kaiser has been done since the war began.

They undermine faith. They destroy courage. They make many Russians believe that the United States is about to seek peace and Russia therefore will be left fighting hopelessly alone.

It was this treacherous activity, combined with the pre-arranged mutiny of German agents in the ranks, that caused the recent slump in the Russian line in Galicia. Direct cause and direct effect.

But take heed of the next point in this black record. Everything that happens in the United States that can be used by these back-biters gets promptly over there.

Every time a plausible cleverly named pro-German organization calls a peace convention the fact gets to the Field of Mars, and is used to show that the people of the United States are opposed to the war.

Every time a senator or representative introduces a dilatory resolution, news of it flies without delay to the huge German machine that is working ceaselessly in Russia to break down the spirit.

American Super-Farm in France to Feed Sammies; May Send Many Farmers

By MILTON BRONNER.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—If the war department puts its O. K. on a proposal recently made to it by some of the best agricultural authorities in this country, Uncle Sam will soon have over 2,000 expert farmers "somewhere in France" arranging a big war farm to feed the American armies.

There are great landed estates in France not being farmed because of lack of men, fertilizer and farming implements and because of the difficulty of clearing off the soil, especially in regions recently occupied by Germans.

These estates could be utilized by Uncle Sam, by agreement with the French government and the owners of the land. At present every pound of food consumed by American soldiers in France has to be shipped from here, when every inch of space in ships is more valuable than diamonds.

It is claimed by the proponents of the farm plan that 2,000 expert farmers who would volunteer for the work could cultivate enough soil to produce practically all of the vegetable food the American army would need. They would not only raise wheat for bread, but oats for horses and mules. Corn could be raised both for animal and human food. Fresh vegetables also could be grown, including potatoes, onions and cabbages, all parts of the regular American army ration.

Such a farm would make the army very largely independent of any German submarine attempt to interfere with its food.

Supply ships from this country to France, if the food farm were in operation need carry only staples like sugar, coffee, tea, salt, pepper and meat. This would give the government far more space for carrying clothing, ammunition, rifles, etc.

If the plan is put through, in addition to 2,000 volunteer farmers the first ship would carry quantities of fertilizers, agricultural implements, stump pullers, etc.

It is also claimed for this scheme that as the armies in France grew bigger it would be possible to send more volunteer farmers and take over more land. It is figured that 2,000 men can cultivate enough land to supply vegetables for 200,000.

BATTLE OVER TAX LOAD CONTINUES; END IN SIGHT

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—The battle over conscription of wealth to pay for the war continued in the senate with the leaders hopeful of disposing of the war tax bill income section before tonight.

Today's chief contest was expected to come over Senator LaFollette's substitute for the income tax schedule proposing to levy about $500,000,000 and $500,000,000 respectively, and Senator Hollis' substitute, designed to raise about $500,000,000.

The government's shipbuilding program calls for a total of 1,270 ships of 7,068,000 tonnage. It was revealed today in estimates the shipping board has sent to Secretary McAdoo on which to base a request for a new billion dollar appropriation.

MONTANA GUARD WILL TRAIN AT PALO ALTO CAMP

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—The 41st national guard division, comprising troops from Washington, Oregon, Montana, Idaho and Wyoming, which had been ordered trained at Camp Greene, Charlotte, N. C., and Camp Fremont at Palo Alto, Cal., has been abandoned because California state health authorities have decided that a sewerage system such as the war department proposed would be injurious to the health of the community. Secretary Baker, in announcing the change, said the war department could not be expected to spend half a million dollars for such a system as the state authorities thought necessary for the task.

FARMERS SHOULD NOT SELL HERDS

Mr. W. H. Peters, animal husbandman for the North Dakota Agricultural college has spent a few days in the central corn belt states for the purpose of determining conditions and the livestock outlook from the standpoint of the North Dakota farmer. He indicates that the crop prospects are excellent in a large section of the corn belt, and that the feed crop will be large.

Evidences exist throughout the entire country that in the past several years there has been considerable selling of breeding stock, especially of cattle and hogs. The farmers, generally, realize at the present time that they have made a mistake in selling their breeding stock so close and are anxious now to secure cows and brood sows. This has resulted in a strong demand for all good stock and high prices are paid.

The corn belt farmer is not yet in the market for feeder cattle and hogs, but as soon as the maturity of the corn crop is assured it is expected that the demands will increase. In the event that early frost occurs with a correspondingly greater increase in soft corn Mr. Peters considers that there will be a great demand for feeder cattle.

In conclusion he states that North Dakota farmers owning livestock have everything to gain and apparently nothing to lose by holding their feeder cattle and hogs until the corn belt crop is ready for feed. It also appears that good business would lean one to hold over cattle of good breeding stock. There is every evidence to indicate that when this stock is once sold it is going to be a difficult problem to replace it with stock of equal quality or at equal price.

TALCOTT WILL PRESENT CLAIM OF HIS STATE

Warden of State Penitentiary to Accompany Burnquist of Minnesota to Washington

$3.06 FAIR PRICE FOR WHEAT SAYS GOVERNOR

Frazier Wires Ladd Urging Him to Hold Out for Justice to North Dakota Farmers

HOOVER GOES WEST. Washington, Aug. 24.—H. C. Hoover, chief administrator, will leave for Chicago today for a twelve hour visit during which he will confer with agents of the Federal Trade Commission, who have been investigating the meat packing industries with the packers themselves, and editors of farm papers.

Frank S. Talcott, warden of the North Dakota penitentiary, will present North Dakota's arguments for $3 wheat at the hearing which has been granted northwestern grain growers in Washington. Warden Talcott now is in St. Paul, where he will join Governor Burnquist of Minnesota and will proceed with him and other representatives of northwestern states to the national capital. This important duty was delegated to the warden by Governor Frazier late last night, when the latter found it would be impossible for him to go in person.

Late last evening the governor wired Herbert C. Hoover along lines similar to those followed in messages from Commissioner of Agriculture and Labor Hagan and the railway commission, urging that the farmer be given a fair price for his wheat this year as a means of encouraging him to plant a larger acreage next year, when the demand for a big crop will be even more urgent than it is today.

The governor wired that he stood out for a price of $3.06 per bushel which the governor regards a fair price for No. 1 wheat this fall, taking into consideration all the circumstances.

Warden Talcott is thoroughly familiar with conditions throughout the state. He is himself a grain-grower, and as warden of the state penitentiary he has kept in close touch with all parts of North Dakota through reports coming into the twine plant.

Completion of the administration's program for federal control of the coal industry was in sight today when the officials turned their attention to the fixing of retail prices and the regulation of distribution. Dr. Henry A. Garfield, appointed to head the coal administration, will take active charge of the work as soon as he finishes the duties with the commission fixing the price of wheat.

That the farming districts of the northwest, now threatened with a fuel famine, may receive sufficient supplies, a telegram was dispatched to President Wilson requesting that the recent priority shipment order be amended so to insure 100 per cent efficiency in delivery from the carriers, both lake and rail.

Representatives of the council of national defense of nine states are conferring here.

20 BUSHELS TO ACRE PRIZE WHEAT YIELD AROUND PARK RIVER

Rev. Currie's Grain Making Good Average; Barley Threshing

25 Bushels. Park River, N. D., Aug. 21.—Thrashing is well advanced in the Park River region. One of the best wheat yields yet reported is 20 bushels to the acre on Rev. Currie's farm. Barley is running 25 bushels to the acre on the Soll brothers ranch, but wheat is not making more than eight bushels.

BEHRBAUM SENTENCED TO SERVE 5 YEARS

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 21.—Material for a thrilling, but pathetic magazine story, with a "sob" in every line, is involved in the case of Wm. Behrbaum, sentenced yesterday to serve five years at hard labor in Leavenworth prison by Judge Chas. F. Amidon. Behrbaum pleaded guilty to 16 counts of an indictment returned recently by Grand Jury No. 1.

Behrbaum is but 25 years of age. He is the son of a prosperous and highly respected farmer of the New Salem vicinity. He grew a manhood in that neighborhood and has won a high place in the esteem of the community.

Through the influence of the wife of the president of the First National bank of New Salem, who had been young Behrbaum's teacher in the local school there, he was given a position in the bank and through his own merits rapidly won a position of trust and responsibility.

He was advanced to the position of cashier. He became engaged to marry a pretty New Salem girl. There was every reason to believe that he would make a quick and successful business man. But he tried to go too fast.

He was bitten by the speculation bug. Stories of swift riches, won through the grain and stock markets, stirred his imagination and he began speculating in wheat. He took the wrong side of the market and lost more money than he could make in a year.

HILL 304 IS TAKEN WITH HEAVY LOSS

French Capture Coveted Position After a Brilliant Assault This Morning

NOW MASTERS OF IMPORTANT PLACES

Heavy Artillery Fighting Continues Along Franco-Belgian Lines Near Ypres

MUST BEAT ENGLAND. Copenhagen, Aug. 24.—England, the arch-enemy of Germany must be beaten down at whatever cost, Emperor William told his troops while on a visit to the Flanders front Wednesday.

An official statement issued from Berlin says the Emperor addressed deputations from all detachments which have had a share in meeting the British attacks.

(By Associated Press.) In a brilliant attack this morning near Verdun, the French carried Hill No. 304, one of the most bitterly disputed positions of the war in the struggle for which thousands of men have lost their lives. The French advanced to an average depth of one and a quarter miles over the sector between Avocourt wood and Dead Man's Hill, Paris announces officially and in addition to Hill 304, stormed the fortified works between Haucourt and Bethincourt.

The new French assault was delivered west of the Meuse. At the first shot, the French although highly successful did not obtain their objective and today's attacks doubtless were intended to complete their attainment of the ends immediately in view. The French are now masters of all the important points on the Verdun front, which they had before the beginning of the big German attack last year.

Bitter Fighting Progresses. On the British front bitter fighting for the positions of Lens has continued during the night. The British official statement announces that they hold German trenches immediately northwest of Greene and Grastier to the south of Lens, and that especially heavy losses have been inflicted on the Germans.

Portuguese troops which are holding a sector in Northern France repulsed German raids in the vicinity of LaFosse. Heavy artillery fighting continues around Ypres, where the British have improved their positions, and successfully withstood counter attacks.

FREE FOTO FOR EVERY NORTH DAKOTA SOLDIER

Official State Historical Society Photographer Ready to Shoot Sammies

Every North Dakotan who is going to war has an opportunity through the North Dakota State Historical society and the Holmboe studios of this city to leave his photograph on record in the offices of the society at the capital without a penny of expense to himself. The Holmboe studios are making these portraits free of charge as the official photographers of the State Historical society, and Mr. Holmboe and the society are anxious to have every member of the National Guard and of the state's quota of the national army filmed and given his appointed place in the state archives.

The undertaking is a huge one, involving the photographing of 10,000 men, 4,000 national guardsmen, and almost 6,000 candidates for the national army. Mr. Holmboe finds that his chiefest difficulty is to get in touch with drafted men. The lists in a majority of instances are not yet available, and he would appreciate personal correspondence with all drafted men who have not yet arranged for a sitting, in order that preparations may be made for "shooting" the candidate before he is called out of the state.

CONVICT WALKS OUT OF DENTAL CHAIR AND DIES

Jesse Starkweather, Inveterate Jail-Breaker, Makes Second Getaway

Jesse Starkweather, who figured in the Mercer county killing trial in Maund several months back, and in which the jury disagreed, but who was discovered to be a convict who had escaped from the state penitentiary and was returned to prison to complete his sentence, at 5 o'clock last evening walked from a dentist's chair in a local establishment and made his second getaway.

His departure was immediately reported to prison authorities and a guard was at once established in the different railway yards to prevent his leaving the town by train. Up to noon today, however, no trace of him had been found.

Starkweather since his return to the prison several months ago had been a model prisoner. All summer, employed on the railway, he was employed on the railway through the business section. His original escape was made about three years ago, when he was serving a sentence for robbery. He did not again show up until he was discovered as the defendant in the Mercer county manslaughter case. When the jury disagreed in the trial of that prosecution, Starkweather was turned over to the prison to complete his term, and he had about four months more to serve when he "beat it" yesterday.

NEWS OF NORTH DAKOTA AND NORTHWEST

U. S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE BOOSTS DRAINAGE

Herbert A. Hayd Has Assurance That $25,000 Will Be Appropriated for Surveys

Lidgerwood, N. D., Aug. 24.—Herbert A. Hayd, state drainage engineer, has procured from the United States department of agriculture assurance of an appropriation of $25,000 to defray the cost of preliminary engineering and estimates of the vast Red River valley drainage project, through which it is hoped to reclaim from the swamps 8,000,000 acres of the northwest's richest farm lands.

This land, until three years ago when Minnesota began dumping its flood waters onto the valley, had been farmed for 35 successive years. It is estimated that if work is started at once on the White Rock dam by which it is proposed to transform Lake Traverse into a joint reservoir, and upon a canal from Lake Traverse through the Bois de Sioux basin to Wahpeton, the benefits to Richland county alone will exceed three million, or twice the amount claimed as damages in suits now pending in the United States supreme court against the state of Minnesota.

LAMORE COUNTY WILL HAVE MANY CREDITS ON NEXT QUOTA FOR DRAFT

Enlistments Have Run High Since June 30, and Few Men Will Have to Go

Dickey, N. LaMoure was singled out for some criticism because its showing of credits in the first draft was not greater. This is due to the fact that practically all of its enlistments came after the initial credit period had elapsed. All of these will be credited on the second draft, and the county's net quota will be slight.

Toledo Women Workers Find "Rompers" Good to Romp in As Well As Work In

It's off with the petticoat and on with the pantaloons—for girls in Toledo factories. These pictures show women employees of the Saxon Manufacturing company ready for work or play in overalls designed by Herman Saxon, head of the company. Donated first to make woman's war work more convenient, the girl employees find the "rompers" an ideal garment for outdoor recreation, in which they are encouraged by factory heads. "The new garments make women employees less conspicuous to men than the old flimsy waists," is the Toledo verdict.

Girls! Use Lemon Juice!

Make a quarter pint of beauty cream for little cost. Clears, softens and whitens the skin. Brings out the hidden roses!

By all means, girls, prepare a lemon lotion to keep your skin flexible and young looking. You will soon realize that true loveliness does not mean the powdery look or waxen colorlessness of some hot-house flower, but is typified by the velvety softness of your skin, your peach-like complexion and rosy-white hands.

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quarter pint of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white.

Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan, and is the ideal skin softener and beautifier. Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy or toilet counter and two lemons from your grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands, particularly rough, red hands.

Some of the stock running loose in the fields is so frantic for water that it is simply wild; it is dangerous for a man to go into the fields unmounted.

John was one of the Grant county quota.

HINTGEN SAVES BISMARCK'S FACE IN SEMI-FINALS

Mandan Player Only Member of Local Team to Go to Finish in State Championship

LADIES PLAYING OFF FOR TROPHIES TODAY

Mrs. E. H. L. Vespermann and Mrs. S. D. Cook in—Praise for Dickinson Hosts

Dickinson, N. D., Aug. 24.—Jack Hintgen is the only Bismarck-Mandan player who has not now been eliminated from the state championship. Hintgen is matched against McDonald of Grand Forks for the semi-finals, which began today. Others playing to the semi-finals are Kostelecky vs. Roquette, Mandig vs. Kennedy and Sheldon vs. Hunter. All of these players will be eliminated today except two, who will be matched tomorrow in a 36-hole contest for the state championship.

Three Dickinson and one Grand Forks man will compete in semi-finals tomorrow morning for state golf championship of North Dakota.

In the third elimination match of the tournament Thursday William Kostelecky of Dickinson defeated Roquette of Dickinson, five up. McDonald, Grand Forks, two up. Hunter, Dickinson, defeated Sheldon, Fargo, one up, but an extra hole had to be played to decide the tie.

In the qualification round of women's championship match Meadames

Kilmer and Hal Heaton of Dickinson, Mrs. Vespermann, Bismarck, and Miss Rea, Grand Forks, won out and will play to a finish today.

In the consolation match for men, Smith and Twichell of Fargo, Lovejoy, Grand Forks and A. D. Heaton, Dickinson, eliminated all opponents. This match will be concluded tomorrow.

B. A. Meisenholder and J. L. B. Thomas, representing the newly organized Kenmare club, made wonderful showings in the tournament considering both new at the game.

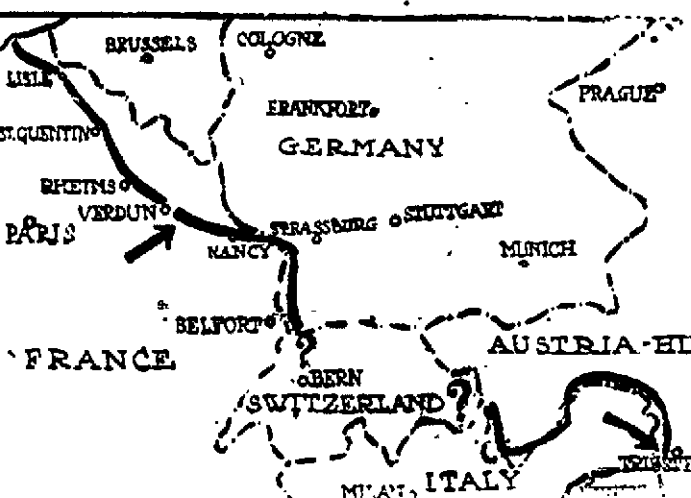

John Reuter, Dickinson, twice state champion of North Dakota, meets E. M. McElligott, the Minneapolis professional today for side purse of four hundred dollars.

APPELATE ENTERTAINMENT.
Local men who returned last evening from Dickinson are profuse in their compliments for the splendid treatment which they received from their hosts of the Queen City of the Slope. Accommodations were provided for Bismarck visitors at the hotels, and autos were always waiting at the hotels and the grounds, ready to convey the players to and from the links or to any destination they might choose in the city.

Reuter of Dickinson, who had won the two state championships for the last two years on outside links, courtously neglected to enter the qualifying round this year and thereby eliminated himself from the championship match, in which he would have had a decided advantage in the opportunity of playing on his home grounds. Mr. Reuter's action is a fair sample of the good sportsmanship displayed by Dickinson throughout the tournament. The Dickinson Town and Country club is an institution of which the city may well be proud, and the heavy rains and stiff winds were the only obstacles to much lower scores than have been recorded.

Bismarck is represented in the ladies' championship play by Mrs. E. H. L. Vespermann, who it matched with Mrs. Herbert of Dickinson, and Mrs. S. D. Cook, who plays Miss Rea of Fargo. There are but eight entries in the ladies' contest, and Bismarck men returning home last evening are confident the Bismarck ladies will bring home the championship.

IS SWITZERLAND'S HOUR ABOUT TO STRIKE?

The combined Anglo-French forces are pushing the Germans back in Flanders, the British are consolidating new positions at Lens, the French have turned the tables on the Germans in the Verdun sector, and the Italians are driving the Austrians back on a 37-mile front from Tolmino to the Adriatic. Military experts believe Germany may now as a last resort violate Swiss neutrality in an effort to flank the French and Italian lines near the Swiss boundaries.

MAJOR SORENSON MADE ADJUTANT AT AUGUSTA

North Dakota Officer Grati-

Major Harold Sorenson of the North Dakota quartermaster corps, writes to Adjutant General Fraser from Camp Hancock, Augusta, Ga., of the great cantonment which is rising there as if by magic to house 50,000 Pennsylvanians of the Keystone state's first quota for the draft army.

Major Sorenson, one of the oldest and most efficient officers of the North Dakota national guard, recently was ordered to Augusta for active duty. He was almost immediately made adjutant to the camp commander, and he has had a very prominent part to play in the important work in progress there.

MORE THAN FIFTY PERCENT OF SLOPE MEDICOS ENLISTED

Physicians of Sixth District Show
Patriotism by Offering Their Services

Including the examining surgeons on the local exemption boards, more than 50 per cent of all the physicians in the Sixth North Dakota district have offered their services to the national government, and the cry is for still more, advises Dr. F. H. Smyth, president of the auxiliary medical defense committee for the Sixth district.

The medical section of the council of national defense, says Dr. Smyth, urges all qualified physicians to apply for commissions. The following physicians in the Sixth district have been commissioned in the medical officers' reserve corps, drafted under the conscription law or rejected for physical disability: H. C. Allnow, Mandan; J. O. Amson, Bismarck; W. T. Cain, Underwood; Ralph Denning, Mercer; P. P. Grebenow, John Halgren, C. K. Holmes, V. J. Lalloue, G. H. Lipp, Hugo Mella, E. P. Quinn, all of Bismarck; S. G. Larrabee, Mandan; George Monteith, Hazelton; R. C. Pryce, Dawson; P. G. Teedy, Regan; P. P. Rice, Selen; John Simon, Kintyre; W. P. Thelen, Wilton; H. E. R. Tucker, clerk of the Cass county exemption board.

Fifty-three men failed to appear, and efforts are being made to apprehend them. Dependents, ruptures and flat feet played a prominent part in the exempted men's qualifications.

Boys Invite Friends to Dance for Benefit of the Mess
Fund

Co. A, First North Dakota Infantry, Bismarck's pioneer company, which feels that it is in fair way to be forgotten by old friends, comes to bat Saturday night with a benefit ball at Patterson's hall. The proceeds will be turned into the company's mess fund, which, as one of the boys stated today, doesn't exist now. This is the first ball Co. A has made upon the public since it was ordered into the service of Uncle Sam last April. The boys have seen some hard service and have buckled into it like men. They hope Saturday evening to get something to lay aside as a nest-egg for a company fund which will provide them with a few of the luxuries which already have been assured all the companies of the new regiment. The music and hall are being furnished free of charge by O'Connor's orchestra, and Pete Harmon's battalion band will give a concert before the dance begins.

PRICE STILL OPEN.

The $1.65 a bushel credited as the decision of Herbert C. Hoover turns out to be a fiction. H. A. Garfield, chairman of the price fixing commission, wires Treadwell Twichell as follows:

"Report absolutely without foundation. An equitable price for farmers will be recommended by committee, which includes five practical farmers in its membership and which is considering all factors you have mentioned, including the fact that the country is at war. Personally, I have not advocated any price, but am keeping mind open until our investigations are completed."

It is now up to Congressmen Young and Norton and Senator Gronna to explain to the farmers of North Dakota their authority for stating that Mr. Hoover intended to confiscate the grain of the tillers of the soil.

The Tribune felt from the first that the government's attitude toward the agricultural interests was misrepresented. It has insisted that the price should be in excess of $2 and urged the farmers to send in telegrams of protest against fixing the price at $1.65.

Undoubtedly the agitation did no harm, but if North Dakota's representatives, with the exception of Senator McCumber, misrepresented Hoover's attitude, each and everyone owes the farmers of this state an apology.

Mr. Garfield states definitely that no price has been fixed. Congressman Young wired the Fargo Commercial club that if Hoover has his way the price will be $1.65 a bushel. This raises an issue of veracity between Hoover, Young and Garfield. If Congressman Young cried, wolf when there was no wolf, he has placed the commercial interests of the state in a ridiculous position.

The farmer is entitled to more than the price Hoover is reported to have fixed, but there is not a scintilla of evidence that Hoover ever suggested a price of $1.65. Senator Gronna has opposed Hoover and all war measures, and doubtless saw in the situation excellent material for political capital. Telegrams went to every commercial club in the state urging them to send in protests. Delegations poured into Washington from Dakota points only to find out that no price had been fixed.

Congressmen Young, Norton and Senator Gronna should give their proof without delay that Hoover desired to fix the price at $1.65. It is also being noised abroad that the grain exchanges wanted the price fixed at $1.65 and that Mr. Hoover has surrounded himself with grain gamblers whose only object was to rob the North Dakota farmer. It now develops that the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce suggests a price of at least $2.50 in Minneapolis.

The entire agitation is fast assuming the proportions of a tempest in a teapot with Young, Norton and Gronna holding the bag. Until the food administration puts itself definitely on record, it is poor judgment to hurl criticism and vituperation.

It has become a favorite diversion to saddle the farmer for a joy-ride into office. Gronna, Young and Norton, who are politicians first, last and all the time, probably saw an excellent opportunity for creating political capital.

Now comes the reports from Washington that the battle between the politicians are contending with the Commercial clubs of Fargo and Grand Forks and the Nonpartisan league for the credit of protecting the farmers against Hoover.

No one can blame the commercial interests for being aroused, if the statement credited to Hoover is true, but Garfield's telegram to Twichell absolutely establishes the fact that no price had been agreed upon.

Young, Gronna and Norton should now give the farmers proof of Hoover's intention to fix the price at $1.65. That would only be fair.

How is a large woman to dress on the new allowance of four and a half yards per skirt and still look slender?

EVASIONS OF GERMAN PRESS.

It is indeed surprising that when editors of the German papers are trapped that they immediately set up the defense that the articles criticized in their columns are not correctly translated, but they never show any willingness to furnish a translation, one indication of the damnable propaganda being secretly carried on through the columns of the enemy language press of the Slope.

The Tribune has had the assistance of one learned in the German language to translate some of the vicious things, which, if short of treason, are highly seditious and unpatriotic. Each time translations have been published, the German press insists the translations were incorrect, but there has never been any offer to furnish any other translation.

It is a well known fact that the German press of the nation, with but few exceptions, are not assisting this nation in the conduct of the war against Prussianism. Nowhere is there that wholehearted support arising from love of America, but everywhere is the covert admiration of the German system which continues to slaughter Americans on the high seas and upon which we are now openly making war. The government acts slowly, but before the war goes much longer, every German newspaper will be compelled to publish the English equivalent of all it prints in the enemy language, or else cease publication.

Those who admire German kultur should ask for their passports and live under the flag of the nation they love and whose acts they condone. Abraham Sumner of Dubuque, called recently on his reward, left $3,000 to an editor who conducted his paper honestly, which merely indicates that the veracious newspaperman is not as extinct as the dodo.

DECISIVE STAGE.

The war has entered its decisive stage. The last battle is now being fought—not in the trenches, not in the air, not under the sea, but right here in the United States.

The war is to be decided by a final test of the relative fitness to survive of the German autocracy and the American democracy.

If the American democracy proves the moral equal of the German autocracy in the fundamental quality which makes a nation it will win. That is the quality of "stick togetherness"—or team work.

No social or national organization that lacks this quality can live. It may excel in all other virtues. Its people may be marveled of industrial, scientific or artistic attainment. They may be individually superior to their foes.

Their system of government may be a thousand times more liberal or enlightened—but if the people prove incapable of burying their individual interests to marshal all their energies in support of the nation in time of peril, the nation will become the vassal of any nation which can do that.

Germany has to date demonstrated the supreme quality of "team work." All else has failed her—her mighty guns, her perfect armies, her submarines, her wonderful industrial mobilization.

The war is a draw on the battle fields, in the fields and shops. The allies' superior resources are bound to gain—if their "morale" equals Germany's.

The war has now entered a spiritual stage. It is a staying match between German social and national efficiency and American social and national efficiency.

The others do not count. They also have shot their bolt and failed to win. They cannot defeat Germany without us, and would not have had a chance if we had not been forced into the war.

It is up to the American people—the people at home. The boys at the front will do their part.

If we fail, then we deserve to lose. We deserve to be the slaves of the German winners. And we will be.

We may maintain for some time a few of the forms of freedom. We may maintain the sort of "democracy" the pacifists and non-resisters rave about, when urged to sacrifice a few of their

Was Uncle Sam Bluffing? Here's Story of Army's Great Growth

NAVY 62000	NAT GUARD 300000
MARINES 15000	U.S. NAVY 197000

	TOTAL 620000

BY THE TRIBUNE'S MILITARY EXPERT.

President Wilson's order naming a new division and brigade generals completes the preparation for training America's new national army. With the junior officers' graduation from training camps, it turns the United States into a real military power. Germany thought we were bluffing. When we went to war our total armed forces were 332,000 men. Today we have 620,000. And we have trained the men who will train the next million.

America has performed the most gigantic feat of military preparedness in history. It has made strides believed impossible in putting effective force against the Teutons. In April the regular army consisted of 131,381 officers and men; officers reserve corps, 2,000; the national guard 123,605; the navy 62,000; the marine corps 15,000, and there were less than 10,000 naval militia men. The total forces numbered 332,000. The regular army and the national guard were ordered recruited to war strength—the army to 293,000 men, the Guard to 329,954, a total of 622,954.

The regulars reached their quota in August, having added 151,481 men in four months. The national guard, mustered into federal service August 5, numbered approximately 300,000 men, and recruiting continues in organizations not filled.

The navy finally ordered to recruit up to 197,000, and the marine corps, 15,000 to 30,000 men, completed their quotas.

Five months after the declaration of war, therefore, approximately 620,000 fighting men of all branches are under arms. More than one third of the 687,000 men in the first quota of the new national army have been passed. Before October all will be in camp. The men who will train them have been selected in officers' training camps.

Pershing in the 1918 spring drive can have 472,000 thoroughly trained and equipped men. By the end of March, the national army will have completed six months' training. British infantrymen now go to France after sixteen weeks' training, are tested eight days and sent to the trenches.

If the allies require, we can throw into battle 500,000 additional troops the end of March—every one trained more than six months. A million fully trained men for the next big offensive.

April 21, 1917, the war department announced it had ample supplies for 500,000, with the exception of heavy ordnance and machine guns. These deficiencies have been met. By the end of November the first increment of the national army will be equipped. The rifle supply problem has been solved.

Yes, in a way Uncle Sam was bluffing. But the bluffer has bluffed the other bluffer!

CHAPTER XII.

The Crew Grow Ugly.

For a moment I remained forgetful of the presence of the girl on deck. There was but one course to pursue—at the very first evidence of disobedience I must assert full authority. There must be no hesitation, no sign of weakness. Even as this crystallized in my own mind, the girl's hand touched the sleeve of my jacket.

"Supper is ready, Mr. Hollis," she said. "Are you not coming down?"

"Very shortly. I will have the men knock off work, and leave the mate in charge of the deck."

"What were you thinking about so earnestly? You actually forgot me," I glanced aside into her eyes.

"Not guilty, Miss Vera; I was thinking of you, and of how I could get you safely out of this scrape. I do not say this to frighten you, Miss Vera, only, perhaps it is best for you to know the situation. The first thing necessary on this voyage is to show those fellows forward who is master aboard. But we've talked about it long enough now. I do not anticipate any locking of horns tonight for those lads will need to discuss plans among themselves first. Bascom will be waiting for you in the cabin, and I will join you presently."

The Girl's Hand Touched the Sleeve of My Jacket.

I walked with her as far as the ladder, and watched until she disappeared. Forward I could perceive little outside the glow of the lanterns in the radius of which black, grotesque figures constantly passed and repassed. Occasionally a voice sang out some command, the words scarcely distinguishable.

"Mr. Leayord!" I sang out.

"Aye, aye, sir."

"Let the men knock off work for the present, and send the second mate's watch down for supper. You will take the deck, and it will be better to have another hand aft here at the wheel."

"Very well, sir."

I waited until he clambered heavily up the ladder and joined me, his huge figure outlined against the gleam of the blunnet light.

"I was pleased to see the way in which the crew took hold, Mr. Leayord," I said quietly, "and that Olson set them so good an example."

He crossed over to the rail and came back wiping his lips on his sleeve.

"Olson is a good man, Mr. Hollis; you made no mistake when you chose him for second officer, but I never saw a worse bunch of sea scum in any fool-cabin than we've got aboard here, sir."

"They took hold, all right."

"Aye, for the once; they're a bit dazed yet, an' have had no time to talk it over among themselves."

"Well, hear from them later, you think?"

"Tomorrow, sir, or perhaps tonight, as soon as they learn for sure the course we're steering. They are dead set against Hamburg."

"Why Hamburg, Mr. Leayord?"

"Well, sir, I don't just know myself, for I was the bosun, and the lads never talked to me very freely. From all I've heard, however, it's largely caused by what that fat bloke over brought aboard with yer Ead to say about this dirty war breakin' out. I don't know the duffer's name, sir; but I hear he claims to be a millionaire, an' is willin' to spend a lot o' coin, just to be took back ter New York. Cookie told me that he and the guy that goes by the name of Liverpool had quite a talk."

"Liverpool Red—yes, I've heard of him; he's the men's leader forward."

"Likely so; but there's others of the same kidney. If I was you, sir, I'd have a talk with Olson when he come on deck again. He'll tell you more'n I can."

I stood silent a moment, staring out into the black void.

"I presume, Mr. Leayord, I can confidently rely on your loyalty in case trouble develops?"

"You sure can, sir."

"And Olson?"

"He'll face it like a man; and although Masters is a bit of a fool, I'm guessing he can be counted on in a pinch."

"Are there any others?"

"That's hard to say, sir, offhand. I haven't been shipmates with them, or with any o' this crew long enough yet to size 'em up; but there are a few men forward who don't chum none with Liverpool's crowd. Olson would know 'em better than I."

"Well, the sooner we learn exactly how we stand in this matter the better. I'll relieve you as soon as I have a bite to eat."

In spite of its general dinginess of paint and furnishings, the main cabin had a look of coziness and comfort as I entered from the black gloom of the decks. Bascom and Miss Vera occupied seats on one side, while Olson, washed and brushed into a state of rare discomfort, sat alone opposite. A slim, narrow-chested man, his weak mouth partially concealed by a straggling mustache, and who answered to the name of Dade, acted as steward, but the boy, Moon, was doing most of the work. I drew out the single vacant chair and sat down.

"Well," I said pleasantly, breaking the rather awkward silence, "I do not exactly know where we are going, but we are on our way."

"The sea is rising, I judge," remarked Bascom.

"There is every promise of a rough night, but nothing to worry over. Dade, why did you set the table out for four? There is another passenger aboard."

"He has refused to mess aft, sir."

"Oh, he has! Well, possibly, I may have something to say as to that. Did he give any reason?"

Dade endeavored to hide a grin. "Not exactly, a reason, sir," he answered softly, "but I took it from what he said that he was not overly proud o' the way he was marked up, sir."

I devoted a few minutes to the meal, but when Dade departed on an errand forward, decided I might just as well discuss the situation frankly.

"I am beginning to fear," I said quietly, "that Mr. Fergus McCann intends to make us all the trouble possible, and is even now behind most of the dissatisfaction on board. Do you know anything definite, Mr. Olson?"

The mate paused in his eating, with knife and fork uplifted.

"I had not heard, sir. May I ask if he is rich?"

"Quite so; he was a guest on the yacht Esmeralda. Now that I have answered these questions, Mr. Olson," and I stared into his rather emotionless face intently, "perhaps you will be kind enough to answer mine."

"I would know what I talk," he returned stubbornly. "He, this Mr. McCann, he offers ten thousand dollars to be put back in New York."

"So that's his game! Who brought the word forward?"

"Cookie, I think, sir. I overheard Jim White say that Mr. McCann had a belt on him with more money in it than they'd ever seen before in all their lives. The fool—I beg your pardon, miss—didn't know no more than to show it to 'em. Why, the sight of it fairly drove them two wharf-rats crazy."

"There's half a dozen men forward," he went on slowly, "who would murder their grandfathers, sir, to get hold o' all that coin. The rest o' the crew are decent enough fellows as sailormen go, but there's liquor aboard yet, and all this 'ere war talk has scared 'em against continuing the voyage."

"McCann told them?"

"He told Cookie an' Liverpool, an' they circulated the news. 'Tis said we're chucked up with contraband, sir, an' that if we're took, every man jack o' us will be chucked into an English or French prison."

"You expect a mutiny, then, Mr. Olson?"

"I don't know what'll stop it, sir," he answered solemnly. "The men want aft ter sorter take your measure, sir, and hear what it was you proposed doing. They ain't had no chance to git together an' talk since, but it's my notion they're ripe enough for the job."

I looked him squarely in the eyes, and how about you, Mr. Olson?"

"Me, sir?" his lips grinned. "If I hadn't intended for to stay with yer, sir, I never would a' took the job."

I reached out my hand, and our fingers locked.

"Good; with both my officers loyal, we'll find a way out of this mess. Come with me into the captain's stateroom, until we see what we can find there useful."

I disturbed things as little as possible, leaving any necessary research into Captain Hadley's private affairs to a later date, but sought with some anxiety through a roll of maps shoved behind the chest, Olson holding a lantern aloft, until I finally brought forth an old chart of the North Atlantic. We bent over this, spread out on the deck between us, and Olson's stubby fingers traced the prickings of two voyages around the Orkneys into the North sea. The chart revealed, also, although in somewhat less detail, the German coastline. I was far from satisfied with this discovery, but nothing better could be hoped for. The total destruction of the charthouse forward made this find a godsend indeed, and we were fortunate in the fact that Captain Hadley preserved his old maps. Bidding Olson relieve the first officer, I remained there alone for some minutes familiarizing myself with the two charts, and outlining in my mind the safest course to pursue. As I sat there the rising wind began to hurl rain against the closed glass of the port, and I could hear the splash of the drops on the deck overhead. An oiled coat, belonging to the skipper, hung dangling from a hook, and I hung dangling from a hook, and I slipped it on, extinguishing the light before closing and locking the door. Leayord was alone at the table in the cabin, which had already been cleared of its dirty dishes.

I had advanced to the companion steps when his voice hoarse me.

"Captain," he said in hoarse whisper, "was you planning to go forward alone?"

"Certainly."

Leayord glanced about uneasily.

"Well, I wouldn't, sir, if I was you—not tonight anyhow. The men are that ugly there's no knowin' what might happen. Do you carry a gun, sir?"

"Why, no; I saw one there in a drawer of Captain Hadley's desk. You think the situation is as bad as that?"

"I'd go back and get it, sir," he said soberly, "an' then keep it to the after-deck till daylight."

An instant I stood staring at the rain beating fiercely against the glass of the companion, then turned back to the stateroom I had just left, slipped the revolver out of the desk drawer into my pocket, and re-entered the cabin.

I buttoned the alaskan closely about my throat and stepped out on deck, the wind driving the rain full into my face, and, for the moment, blinding me.

RULE OF THUMB NAVIGATION

New England Sailors Stick to Sextant and Care Little for New-Fangled Nautical Instruments.

Edward Hungerford, who made an investigation for Everybody's to find out where the men are coming from for our new merchant marine, relates some interesting incidents showing the New England sailors' independence of new-fangled nautical instruments. "Ask them about navigation," he writes, "and they will bring out, with loving care, the sextant that was father's or Uncle Jim's or, more likely, grandfather's or one of the great-uncles. They will point out the vernier scale upon its bright face and say to you—landlubber that you are:

"She shoots the sun. With it we get the latitude. A chart and the latitude—a lead line and judgement—judgment counts—and we can get anywhere between the Bermudas and Greenland."

"How about the longitude? you venture."

"You certainly are a landlubber. The salt lets you know that, with a single glance. Then he shows compassion and relates an anecdote:

"There was a fellow sailing out of Gloucester and someone gave him a chronometer—that's the instrument the scientific fellows get the longitude with. They explained it to him, an' for three days he sailed by it—God knows where to. Then the dianged thing busts an' he comes back to the sextant an' gets to the banks only a little behind the rest of the fleet. But if that chronometer hadn't busted, by Judas Priest, stranger, he might have hit over in Portugal somewhere."

A Good Listener.

The horse is really one of the best listeners in the world. He is always on the alert for sounds which concern or interest him. When he looks at anything he turns his ears towards it to observe the better whether any sound comes from it. If a horse is particularly interested in your driving of him he always turns his ears backward toward you, but if he has no concern on that subject or if he sees anything ahead that interests him he keeps his ears pricked forward. A horse hears the whinny of another horse at a greater distance than the average man can hear it.—Boston Transcript.

No Clothespins in China.

The American housewife carries around a big bag of clothespins every Monday. The Chinaman twists two clotheslines together and thrusts the corners of the washing between the two strands, where they are held as firmly as clothespins ever held them, says the "Christian Herald."

The introduction of clothespins will not help the Chinese, and even such revolutionary products as the sewing machine, the electric light and the phonograph, which give to Americans leisure, evenings of good reading and grand opera at home, may mean longer hours of toil for the Chinese, or unwholesome pleasures when the work is finished.

TO HAVE BEAUTIFUL ARMS---

TAKE A LESSON FROM LINA CAVALIERI, SAYS IDAH McGLONE GIBSON

(This is the ninth of a series of articles analyzing the famous American beauties.)

By Idah McGlone Gibson, Beauty Expert of the Daily Tribune, and Author of Confessions of a Wife.

"One might almost find the lost arms of Venus on Cavallieri," said the man who was walking through the Metropolitan museum with me.

He was wrong, for Cavallieri's arms are too slender for the wonderful statue. Ideals of beauty change and today the modern beauty must first have slenderness.

Cavallieri's arms conform perfectly to modern ideas of feminine beauty. They taper from shoulder to wrist; they are round, with no ugly enlargements at the elbows, which are softly dimpled.

Much of the beauty of a woman's arms depends on the color and texture of the skin. A beautiful arm should invite touch by its delicate transparent whiteness and appearance of softness.

If you have hair on your arms it can be dissipated by using a paste made of barium sulphide, 80 grains, and powdered chalk, 400 grains. Mix well together and then wet into a smooth paste. Cover the arms with paste, let it remain for about five minutes, then scrape off with an ivory paper knife. Rub on cold cream after washing.

If the hair on your arms is not very heavy use peroxide of hydrogen to bleach it so that it will not be noticeable.

For skin of coarse texture on the upper arm, wash every night with a lather made of pure castile soap and very hot water, using a stiff flesh brush. Then use cold cream over upper arms and elbows to keep them from growing old looking.

of Minot are guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Pierson of this place.

Mrs. A. E. Jacobson, of this place, who has been spending the summer at Spiritwood Lake, has returned to the city. She was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. H. M. Tellis and sister, Miss Helene Bellis of Jamestown, who will visit here for several days.

Miss Knudsen, who has been at the Bismarck hospital for the last two weeks acting as superintendent of nurses in the absence of Miss Sand, has returned to her home in Almont.

Miss Anna Mae Ankenmann, who underwent an operation Thursday in the St. Alexis hospital for appendicitis, is getting along nicely.

NEWCOMB RETURNS FROM KILLDEER BRANCH POINTS

Rev. G. B. Newcomb, superintendent of the Society for the Friendless, has returned from a trip over the Killdeer branch, where he spent several days on business for the society.

Mr. Newcomb was fortunate in placing one of the men he has been interested in in a good paying job. He also made an address while there telling of the work of the society. He was accompanied home by two boys, brothers, who were placed in the state industrial school in Mandan. Rev. Mr. Newcomb finds a number of complicated cases in that district. He will go to Coleharbor the last of the week, speaking Sunday evening in the Swedish Baptist church.

Of Importance to Every Woman Considering An Immediate Purchase of a Fall Suit or Coat

OWING to the prevailing difficulties in procuring prompt deliveries of Fall and Winter Ready-to-wear apparel as well as other established and recognized uncertainties we urge our customers, not to be to hasty in the selection of a garment, which they will be obliged to wear and be satisfied with, throughout the winter.

At the present prices the purchase of a garment should be a subject of careful deliberation and consideration,--the investment is too great to consider lightly. Hastiness may mean early dissatisfaction and what seems to be in vogue now may be discarded when the newer and better designed garments arrive in several weeks.

We have a remarkable assortment on hand now, other stores doubtless have also, but regardless of this, it is an undisputed fact that the "cream" of the market cannot be obtained until a buyer personally makes the selection late in the season, for then the new patterns contain all the new effects not to be found in the early garments.

This is a condition, which, neither the "Far sighted" nor the "Buy early" merchant can possible overcome, regardless of his contentions.

We assure that you cannot possibly find a richer or more complete display at this time of the season than is now included in our complete lines of the celebrated "Palmer" "Conde" "Sunshine" and "Lady Duff Gordon" styles, now ready for sale, but in justice to our customers we advise their waiting until early September.

LINGERIE IS AID TO LARGE WOMEN

New York, Aug. 24.—Lingerie for large women, designed especially for the new fall stocks, is calculated to fit in with the general scheme of evening designing which in this day and age is doing much to help the ample woman preserve the appearance of slender lines. This dainty evening chemise is cleverly cut and fashioned to that end.

MARY PICKFORD AT HER GREAT EST.

Famous Players Star Incomparable in Powerful Drama, "The Eternal Grind."

It seems almost unbelievable that a great star can go on up-lining her previous performance up to the green time after time, but Mary Pickford appears in the Famous Players Paramount Picture, "The Eternal Grind," which is the feature at the Bismarck and Grand theatre. Tonight will unquestionably be pronounced her greatest endeavor by public and critics alike. When Mary Pickford started in "The Foundling" it was almost universally declared to be her most impersonation. When she followed that with "Poor Little Poppin" that was hailed as the greatest of all. But in both of these characterizations Miss Pickford appeared as a victim of circumstances--as an immature child whom fate had fastened upon as a sort of football to be kicked about at will. In "The Eternal Grind" Miss Pickford is a very mature young lady--eventually ripened by hard work in the factory--whose indomitable will, fearlessness, resolution, ingenuity and forceful personality compel our admiration as well as our sympathy. It is this new note of power which Miss Pickford strikes in coping with the great crisis which she faces that will win for "The Eternal Grind" the verdict of "the greatest she has ever done."

Prehistoric Japanese Canoe.
Workmen engaged in the dry river bed of the Namasu-gawa, Osaka prefecture, have unearthed a huge canoe made of camphor wood. It has not yet been completely uncovered, but the part so far dug out measures over 40 feet in length, 6 feet in width and 26 inches in depth. There are traces of the canoe having been colored blue.

According to archeologists the canoe is about one thousand years old, and though several similar canoes have been discovered in various parts of the country, nothing like the present one in size has been found.—East and West News.

Fans! Measure Your Hands With These!

Are Your Hands as Small as Scott's—As Large As Guisto's?

They Have the Extremes in the Big Leagues

BY PAUL PURMAN

Have you a small delicate lady-like hand?
If so lay it on the picture and compare it to Everett Scott's.
Have you a big ham-like hand? Then try it out with Louis Guisto's.
Everett Scott, Boston Red Sox shortstop has the smallest hand in baseball. Whether or not it has anything to do with his playing or not Scotty doesn't claim to know, but nevertheless it stands that Scotty, either on account of his hands, or in spite of them is about the best shortstop in the big leagues.
The ponderous mitt of the Cleveland Italian first baseman is said to be the largest in the big Fans! What kind of hands have you?

Try them out on these life size outlines of the mitts of Scott and Guisto and see how they size up.
The large black outline is the exact size of the hand of Louis Guisto, Cleveland first, baseman, said to have the largest hand in big league baseball.
The smaller shaded outline is that of the hand of Everett Scott, Red Sox shortstop, the smallest mitt in baseball.
How does your hand measure with them?

Correct.
The teacher had been telling the pupils about the great forests, particularly the pines, and had asked if anyone could tell which of the pines had the sharpest needles. Johnny, in the front row, raised his hand and on being asked, said, "The goreupine."

In Damp Weather.
Plans for a party were to take in damp weather, especially when the instrument is an old one. In almost every case, the sticking will not be between the keys, but along the front. This can be remedied with little trouble. Take a thin knife and work a little corn starch between the keys and the front board and they will slip easily.

Change Does Some Good, Perhaps Yanks and Browns Would Benefit by Trade

From New York circulate rumors of a coming shake-up in the Yankees which may carry with it the disposition of Bill Donovan as manager of the club, potentially one of the strongest in the league at the start of the season and which is now barely holding on to fifth place.
Col. Jacob Ruppert, one of the club owners, is said to be on the war path, and if he is he cannot be much blamed.
He and Capt. Huston, the other Yankee magnate, have not spared money or work to get a winning ball club. They bought a bunch of misfits when they acquired the Yankees and at once set about to build a real pennant contender.
Last year their hopes were blasted by a series of accidents that put many of their stars out of the running. This year there causes of defeat may be described to indifference, playing and failure of the potent hitters to be anything but potential.
The Yankees lack the punch. The club is lackadaisical. It doesn't play ball with a snap.
Perhaps manager Donovan is to blame, but more probably it is his players.

Just now there is some talk of trades with the Browns. Such trades might be beneficial to both clubs. It is understood that Ruppert would willingly part with any members of his club except Baker Pipp, Walters and Peckinpaugh. Phil Ball has been quoted to the effect that he would trade or sell any player on his club, excepting Sisler.
There are some fine ballplayers in both lots, fellows like Pratt, Shotton and Sloan of the Browns and Hendrix, Gilhooly and Malsel of the Yankees who might be benefitted by such a change.

JUST MAKE A FRESH START

It Is Only Way to Remedy Mistakes One Has Made as Past Cannot Be Lived Over Again.

Now and then a man pauses to take account of stock, and looks back ruefully over the course of his life to note the many places where he made the wrong turn or was shoved off the track by adverse circumstances. He says to himself, believing what he says, that if he could retrace his steps and take a fresh start, knowing what he knows now, he would not make such a mess of things again. He can put his finger down on the very spot in the map of his life where he went wrong. There was a blurred place on the trail, where there was no trace of the footprint of any who passed that way and no mark of the woodman's ax upon a tree. It was for him, plow to choose the way to take, and in the name of heaven to arrive he chose wrong, and has wandered ever since.

A man plays a game, or runs a race, or conducts a business, or marries a wife, or chooses a friend, or elects a calling, or forms a habit—and by and by the conviction is borne in upon him, that he was in error. Now it is too late to retrieve, says the Philadelphia Ledger. He must wear for the remainder of his days the millstone due to the wrong decision. What is he to do? He strangled his chance new-born. He exchanged his brightness for potage. It is of no avail to plead that he had had advisers, that he was misled, that he was the tool of environment, that a base heredity rose up to claim him and a latent taint in the blood broke out and wrought an irreparable mischief. The past is there, and his legend is deeply graven on his brow or seared by the brand of the iron that has entered into his soul. Can he go back? The years and the closed doors and the finished chapters tell him no.

But the forward look and the future provide him with a better way to take. When Mrs. Peterkin, in the story, had spoiled her cup of coffee by putting salt in it and was trying to redeem the error by the neutralizing action of all sorts of chemicals, the lady from Philadelphia suggested that she make a fresh cup. Seeing that you can't go back, why not make a fresh start exactly where you are? Decision has a miraculous way of finding a standpoint of rock in the middle of a quicksand.
Force of habit.
Rank Cushman—"I owe you a considerable overdraw, madam. What shall we do about it?" She—"You may charge it, please."—Judge.

HE GOT THE FANS

Officer Met Objections of His Superiors in Washington.

Offered to Transfer One of his Heavy-weight Ensigns to Make Room for Extra Equipment.

When a squad of civilian volunteers went on a battleship training cruise, Lieut. F. H. Roberts one day told them about service with the destroyers.
"No special attempt," he told the volunteers, "is made in selecting the men to serve in torpedo craft, whether they are fat men or lean men, short men or tall men. The character and spirit are developed by association after their arrival. As a rule, they are older than the men on the battleships.
"You all know that one of the characteristics of a destroyer is ability to make high speed. To this end it has always been the policy of the naval constructors to keep fittings of the vessel strong but of light weight. No enclaves were ever lost by the naval constructors in lightening the destroyers by removal of any fittings that they considered unnecessary."
To illustrate: A flotilla of destroyers was dispatched from the Atlantic coast to the Philippines via San Juan, the Azores, the Mediterranean, the Suez canal, Indian ocean and the West Indies.
It so happened that on one of these destroyers the commanding officer was a man weighing 230 pounds. His two assistants, both then ensigns, each weighed well over 200 pounds. Out of a half-dozen chief petty officers three of them were heavyweights, and in the rest of the crew were two others of the same avoirdupois.
Upon arrival in the Philippines the weather was hot and sultry, the sun keeping the decks of the vessel warm, adding another torment.
The vessel's original allowance list had included one electric fan, so the commanding officer submitted a requisition requesting that a fan be furnished for the wardroom, and one in each compartment in which the crew were quartered, a total of five fans.
The request in due time reached Washington, and some three months later was returned disapproved as the bureau did not wish to add any unnecessary weight to the vessel for fear of reducing its speed.
Nothing daunted, the commanding officer returned the requisition with a statement thereof of the weights of himself, his two commissioned assistants and other members of the crew and requested that one of these heavyweights be transferred and that a man weighing about 150 pounds be sent in his place.
The fans were forthcoming and nobody was transferred. Since that time electric fans are among the few comforts found on destroyers.

Effects of Fear.
The coward on the field of battle dies many times whether death comes to him or not.
Not only on the field of battle do men suffer fearsome deaths but in various walks of life. Their fear of failure makes weaklings of them, just as the fear of disease renders them fit subjects for it.
It was not long since that some thoughtful companions of a young lady who had a horror of smallpox told her that she had been exposed to the disease and pointed to some innocent red spots on her face as evidence that she was taking it. For days and nights she suffered from pain and fever and mental anguish. Upon learning the facts in the case the physician assured her that she had not been exposed to the disease and that there were no symptoms of it. She thereupon took a turn for the better and rapidly regained her health.
This is but one of the constantly recurring instances of the effects of fear on the mind and through it on the body.

Shark Fishing Season.
The best season for catching sharks seems to be during the cooler months from October to March. Fishermen say that sharks are not so plentiful at other times of the year.
The flesh, fins, jaws and other bones, livers and skins all enter into the commerce of Aden, which is the center of the shark-fishing industry. The fresh meat of the smaller sharks is sold regularly in the fish market at very reasonable prices to the poorer classes of natives who cannot afford other sorts of fish. The meat is strong, but is said to be quite palatable when one is accustomed to eating it. The principal consumers of Tideless Records for Six Months.

The total known catch of tideless for the first half of 1917, as reported to the United States bureau of fisheries, was 4,536,385 pounds, for which the fishermen received $247,087. The quantity for the corresponding period in 1916 was 4,000,000 pounds of an undeterminable value.

Find Volcano Is Hottest at Top.
Notwithstanding what the old textbooks say, it now appears that a volcano is hottest on its surface. This is the conclusion drawn by a scientist who has made extensive investigations in craters in Hawaii and has obtained samples of gases and lava before they reached the air. Laboratory studies of these samples make it appear that much of the heat required to keep an open lava basin in fluid condition is supplied by the chemical action of the gases. From these investigations the scientist concludes that in times of great activity the temperature at the surface of a volcano undoubtedly is higher than that below the surface.

Gun Cotton.
Immerse cotton wool in a boiling dilute solution of potassium carbonate, wash with water, and then dry. Then steep for a few minutes in a cold mixture of one part of concentrated nitric acid and three of oil of vitriol, then squeeze, and again place in a fresh acid mixture and leave for 48 hours. Then squeeze and wash for a long time with running water, and finally steep in a solution of potassium carbonate. Gun cotton is insoluble in water, alcohol, and ether. It takes fire at 300 degrees Fahrenheit, burning away rapidly but without explosion. When ignited in a confined space or by percussion, it decomposes with violent detonation, the energy of which equals that of five times its weight of gunpowder.

shark meat are the Arabs, although the native Jews and Somalis also use it. The Somali and Arab are Mohammedans and their religion forbids eating the flesh of any fish that has not scales. However, the working classes of natives are so poor that shark meat is the only sort of fish they can afford.

Don't Use Rhubarb Leaves.
Because rhubarb leaves contain certain substances which make them poisonous to a great many persons, specialists of the United States department of agriculture warn housewives against using this portion of the plant for food. A number of letters have been received by the department calling attention to the fact that certain newspapers and magazines are advocating the use of rhubarb leaves for greens, and that disastrous results have followed the acceptance of the advice.

Pure Kaolin Is Rare.
Pure kaolin or China clay is rare. It is mined in parts of Alabama, Delaware, Georgia, Massachusetts, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Florida, Missouri, Tennessee and several other states. There are workable deposits of fireclays in 18 states, important deposits being in western Pennsylvania, in the coal-mining region of Ohio, in a belt across New Jersey from Perth Amboy to Trenton, in parts of Maryland, Missouri, Alabama and Colorado. Ball clay is mined in New Jersey, Kentucky, Missouri, Colorado and Florida. Brick clay of good quality is found in nearly every state in the Union. A very plastic clay, known as gumbo, is found in the Southern states.

Simple Instructions.
Reginald bought an evening tie, and, wishing to be immaculate, asked the shop assistant to tell him the correct way to tie a bow.
"Well, sir," said the obliging assistant, "you hold the tie in your left hand and your collar in the other. Slip your neck in the collar and cross the left-hand end of the tie over the right with the left hand, steadying the right end with the other hand. Then drop both ends, catching the left with the right and the other with the left. Reverse hands and pick up the loose end with the nearest hand. Pull this end through the loop with your unengaged hand and squeeze. You will find the bow tied, and all you have to do is to disentangle your hands."—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

Well Provided.
"How was the camping party?"
"Enjoyable."
"I presume you ate fish every day?"
"Yes. We were thoughtful enough to bring some sardines, canned herring and salmon from town."

John Wesley's Mother's Advice. John Wesley's mother once wrote to him when he was in college: "Would you judge of the lawfulness or the unlawfulness of pleasure, take this rule: Whatever weakens your reason, impairs the tenderness of your conscience, obscures your senses of God, or takes off the relish of spiritual things; whatever increases the authority of your body over mind, that thing to you is sin."—Christian Science Monitor.

CHEER FOR ROOKIE

Encouragement in Letters From Home Helps Fighting Men.

Officers Say Gloomy Missives Demoralize Soldiers While Bright Ones Give Will to Win.

Mothers! Sweethearts! Sisters! Here's a new way to "do your bit," equally as important as knitting gray wool socks for the recruits or cutting bandages for the Red Cross.

"Write a cheerful letter to your soldier."

Having its origin at Chickamauga, the South's greatest war mobilization center, this vague, for it has found favor much as the American godmother to the French soldier, it is bounding into popular favor. It is accelerated by these advantages: it is based on facts; it strikes at an imperative need, and it achieves obvious results.

The facts are these: Fully 80 per cent of the letters received by the army man convey, instead of good cheer, a tale of petty woes and imaginary griefs.

"There's a vacant chair at the table, George."

"Poor sister's went to work to help support us since you went away."

"How we need your strong, broad shoulders to help us bear the burden."

"Mother's sick. Father's sprained his little finger and poor little Johnny's down with the measles."

These are typical dum-dum letters to boys in camp. Ninety per cent of them are better left unopened. And herefrom springs the new service.

"Shield the boy from the trifling cares and worries of home," urge the officers. "Tell him how proud you are of him, how fine you know he's doing, how happy you all are."

"Soldiers, like schoolboys, particularly the younger ones that are out in the world alone for the first time, look forward to the letters from home with eagerness," said a veteran major. "If they carry a morbid tone, he imbibes it; drinks it to the dregs, and broods. Either that, or as with some dispositions, he becomes reckless and careless."

"On the other hand, a cheery letter encourages him and sends him forth with a will to lick a regiment single-handed."

"Either way the effect is contagious. 'Despondent, the trooper is reduced to one-half efficiency. His spirit spreads to the squad, to the company. He becomes discouraged and dissatisfied with the service. Gloom letters are responsible for more than half the desertions.'"

So it is that the importance of a trooper's mail is recognized by army officers far and wide, and at Chickamauga the new "bit" is set in motion. It has already gone so far that students at the officers' training camp are receiving daily epistles, even from fair ones they do not know, each carrying a little insertion of joy. The result is general cheerfulness and firm endeavor throughout the camp.

"Write a cheerful letter to your soldier," is the slogan.

Largest Cold Dredge.

A dredge company connected with the United States government not long ago to build flood-restraining levees on either side of the Yuba River, Cal., and to do it free of charge, the condition being that the company be allowed to dredge for gold while fulfilling its contract. Accordingly a gold dredge, costing $500,000, was built which is said to be the largest of its kind in the world. An unusual feature of the mammoth floating machine is that it has two arms, each 225 feet long, instead of one. These are provided with 44-inch belt conveyors that deposit the findings on either bank of the stream as the dredge moves along. The digging ladder is equipped with steel buckets of 18 cubic feet capacity, which can dig to a depth of 80 feet. The hull which supports all this machinery is entirely of steel and is 165 feet long and 68 feet wide. The gold-saving tubs have an area of 8,000 square feet.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

STORY OF SEAGOING STEER

It Floated Around New York Harbor for Many Hours and Caused Much Excitement Before Rescued.

Several longshoremen were biting into thick sandwiches of garlic on the water front when there came a prodigious thumping on the plank underneath. The floor of the pier gave forth a hollow sound.

One of the longshoremen, the Brooklyn Eagle testifies, swallowed his garlic the wrong way and let out a Polish exclamation. Then he bent over and applied his eyes to a crack in the woodwork. At first he could not make out anything in the murk, but at length a pair of green eyes met his horrified gaze. It seemed, to his untutored mind, conclusive evidence of a personal call from the evil one, and when horns rapped the planking and a long tail swished the water he went away from there very quickly. With him went the rest of the longshoremen.

Up winding Fulton street they sped and around the crooked corner into narrow Poplar street, where they very nearly carried the door of the Poplar street police station off its hinges. They arrived before the desk sergeant all abreast and told their story, as their knees smote one against another and their hands groped feebly for the desk rail. The desk lieutenant thought at first it was a case of "greenhouse" whiskey, but he finally sent a man down to investigate. The patrolman found that the apparition was only a steer which had been thrown into the river and had swum up under the dock. He did not know just what to do and his police manual gave him no help. Obviously he could not loosen the steer's collar and roll it over a barrel. Nor could he give it an antidote for poison.

At last he had a bright thought and called up the dock department, the steer being at a dock and therefore, per se, a subject for the dock department.

The dock department responded—or part of it did—with saws. Then having opened a nice round hole in one of the city's docks, its work was done, and it sent for the S. P. C. A. The S. P. C. A. does all boating jobs appertaining to steers, porcupines or other animal flotam lifted from the river.

Some brave man passed a rope around the middle of Taurus and every body gave a "Yo, heave ho!" Up came the steer and stood dripping on the dock with the seaweed hanging from his flanks.

This steer is supposed to have been in the river for 48 hours before it was rescued.

Communal Kitchens.

It is expected that, with the assent of the food controller of Great Britain, an experiment in the use of communal kitchens will be made very soon. The need for these aids to the feeding of the people is threefold; the large number of families who are unlike, through ill-health or other causes, to participate in the economic advantages of the war; the difficulty of obtaining suitable and nourishing food for children; and the necessity of having an organization like this in direct touch with the central headquarters. The food once cooked at the central kitchen would be sent out in large tin-lined boxes or double cans to the various depots for sale, and in these big, closed receptacles it would keep hot a long time. At the depots it might be well to supply hot plates for the food to stand on so that when bought it would need little reheating before it was served, says a London correspondent. The demand for a variety of diets can all be met, and plans have already been thought out for dealing with a thousand-and-one interesting questions that arise.

Substitute for Copper.

The use of soft steel and iron as a partial substitute for copper in the manufacture of decorative metals is being experimented with in the department of manual arts at the University of Wisconsin.

For years it has been traditional for decorative metal products to be made wholly or in large part of copper, brass or some other alloy of copper. The price of copper is now so high, more than 50 cents a pound, that a substitute is needed in decorative metal.

The kind of steel and iron required in this kind of work costs at present 14 cents a pound. In many respects this steel is as good, if not better, than copper. It works easily, wears as well, is not discolored or oxidized as quickly, and for many uses is even stronger than copper. It lacks the red-gold luster, but can be given a silver-hued burnish, or can be decorated with paints.—University of Wisconsin Bulletin.

His Way of Application.

The colored laborers who were patrolling the street for the street car company, were discussing the fate of one Henry they had known.

"Yes, sir," said one, "Henry was found with two bottles of whisky on him last Sunday, and was taken to court."

The crowd stopped work to listen to the tale. The foreman was not in sight.

"Well, when he was taken up in court," the speaker continued, "Judge Deery fined him $10 and sent him off to the workhouse."

All the men glanced hastily around. "And Henry was there only two days and someone (it is always someone) up and made him a guard. Now Henry is working as a guard over the other prisoners and is getting good pay besides."

Crow Is Omnivorous.

In order to get a living in New England during the winter the crow has developed a catholic appetite, and persons who have made a study of the bird and its bill of fare say that the crow is omnivorous in the broadest sense of the word. In a pinch he will eat anything. The principal items on his bill of fare are beetles, spiders, weevils, grasshoppers, moths, butterflies, caterpillars, bees, ants, wasps, flies, crabs, shrimps, snails, fish, toads, frogs, young chickens, wild birds and their eggs, carrion and all sorts of plants and grains, both wild and cultivated. Corn constitutes a large proportion of the grain eaten, and this is one of the principal grievances of the farmer against the crow. A bird with such a catholic taste in food is obviously well prepared to meet hard times and the high cost of living. The crow will kill and eat small snakes. He will eat small mammals up to the size of a cottontail rabbit.—Hartford Courant.

Ready to Please.

A French lady of consequence, who had a lawsuit, came to solicit the favor of the president of the court in which the case was to be adjudicated. The magistrate, not receiving her in the way she expected, she was somewhat chagrined, and on passing into the antechamber, said loud enough to be heard: "Plague take that old ape!"

The next day, the lady gaining her cause, she ran directly to thank the president, who merely replied: "Know, madame, another time, that an old ape is always ready to please a young one."

A Question.

"The Hindus have some queer customs. The women wear strings of gold coins and many bangles. One female will frequently carry all the family wealth."

"Are we so very different?" inquired Flubbing, looking at a display of easy payment diamonds that was going by.

IRREGULARITIES LOST STATE BIG TAX ASSESSMENTS

Carelessness in Describing Property Results in Two Adverse Decisions

MINERAL RIGHTS CAN BE TAXED IF LISTED RIGHT

The North Dakota tax commission lost a case but won a partial victory in the supreme court today, when an opinion was handed down holding that while mineral rights are legally taxable, in the particular action under consideration—the Northwestern Improvement Co. versus Oliver county—the method pursued in listing the mineral rights for taxation was so faulty as to render the assessment void.

System Was Irregular.

The county auditor of Oliver after the adjournment of the board of equalization inserted in the assessors' books a description of the property in the name of the plaintiff, computing the taxes thereon, and extended the same on the tax list as taxes. He then advertised the lands for sale for delinquent taxes and did sell the same at tax sale, all without affording the plaintiff an opportunity to be heard on the assessment. Therefore, the court rules, the assessment is absolutely void.

State Has Right.

On the subject of the state's right to assess mineral reserves, the court says: Where the grantor conveys land, reserving mineral rights, such reservation is an interest in the land properly assessable against the grantor from duty to pay tax on his reservations.

The court also ruled that such heretofore "NW4-2-6-6" commonly used by county auditors in the description of lands do not constitute an adequate or legal description and cannot be recognized as such by the supreme court. It is suggested that the state may well concern itself in its next session.

Great Northern Wins.

It was an off-day for the tax commission in supreme court, Chairman Packard's body also losing its case against the Great Northern railway. Nash Bros. and Swift and Co., for the assessment of property owned by the wholesalers and jobbers on the Great Northern right of way at the Forks.

The court ruled that taxes are assessable against the lessors in addition to the railway company, but that nothing had been established in the description of the county auditor to mark out the property intended to be assessed, and that the description was so indefinite as to invalidate the assessment.

A considerable amount of taxes is involved in each of these cases.

PRO-GERMANS IN UNITED STATES AFFECT RUSSIA

it of the Russian people and cause them to lay down their arms.

Every time a senator undertakes to hamstring his government by blocking necessary legislation, casting discredit on the motives of America or endorsing this clever German maneuver or that, the news goes swiftly to Petrograd and the slimy creatures that do Germany's work on the Field of Mars chuckle and are glad.

They have been provided with a fine fresh lot of ammunition. The machinery to get it quickly to Russia as soon as it appears in the senate must have been set up long ago.

There is no question that it is wonderfully alert, active and efficient.

Special Commission.

For instance, the moment the special commission to Russia was suggested last April a flood of propaganda was let loose to hamper its work. Every conceivable lie about it, its objects, the men that composed it, the government and people of the United States, the aims of the United States in the war, was turned loose by mail upon Russia and a battalion of agents sent along to spread the poison and see that it took hold.

Germany's desperate need was that Russia should not be aggressive in the war. Germany must it before nullify the effect of the commission's visit, and there was the way to do it.

All these things show very plainly the existence in this country of a monstrous and cunningly directed German machine.

They also show the appalling chances that ignorant or disloyal men in congress take when they try to hobble this country in the great work it has undertaken to do.

It is not for me to dwell upon a situation that drives thoughtful men abroad from their sleep, but I ask you merely these questions:

At this stage of the game, what do you think would happen if Germany were to break through that Russian line?

And what can keep her from breaking through, when the spirit and united purpose of the Russian people?

When I arrived in this country I read in the American newspapers many undeservedly bitter things about Russia because part of her troops had wavered.

If they waver again, say no bitter things about Russia.

Say them about certain men and certain newspapers in the United States, for they alone will be to blame.

Not only for that day's work but for the colossal disaster and years of slaughter and suffering that may follow.

Though Tristan is a German police dog Mrs. Haas expects him to drag more wounded allies to her ambulance than several ambulance assistants could recover from the battlefield.

HOUSTON SCENE OF RACE RIOTS

after the rioting troops ceased to fire, those in camp were calling for ammunition and making threats.

Girl Is Killed.

It was not until the negroes reached the outskirts of the city that the killing began. Alma Reichert, 15 years old, the first victim, was shot by a stray bullet as she was seeking safety in a store. Sixteen truck loads of national guardsmen were rushed to the seat of the trouble, and all the streets were put under patrol.

More than 100 armed negro soldiers were said to have hid under buildings in the vicinity of the baseball park. With their high-power rifles they pursued their sniping tactics.

Preserve Military Order.

Those who saw the force of negroes as they raided through the western end district say they were not lacking in order, but were keeping close to the fences. They were shouting defiance and talking loudly.

Earl Findley, with Fred Schofield, was dragged from an automobile, kicked to the ground and thrown into a ditch. Findley was found dead, his body pierced by more than a dozen bullets, while Schofield was wounded in both arms.

Co. G, Eighth Illinois Infantry, was not involved in the trouble in any way.

Congressman Wires.

Congressman Eagle listened attentively to all the reports which came in at midnight and sent this telegram:

"Houston, Texas, Midnight, Thursday, Aug. 23. To Secretary of War, Washington, D. C.

"As a congressman from this district, I report death and wounding of several persons as a result of sending negro soldiers here. Without stating who is to blame, it is clearly a race riot and is a tragedy sufficient to compel the statement that it is a tragic blunder to send negro troops to southern camps."

"I protest vigorously against the Illinois negro soldiers ordered to Houston being sent. By all means order them to northern training camps and order negro troops being sent here stopped."

(Signed) "JOE H. EAGLE."

Started Over Negroes.

Major K. S. Snow, commanding the battalion of negroes, made this statement at two more occurrences Thursday that crystallized feeling among the men of his command:

"Thursday morning a Houston police officer arrested a negro woman, and in doing so, I am informed, he slapped her face. A soldier of the 24th, who had been drinking, remonstrated with the policeman for what he considered his unnecessary violence. The officer then began beating the negro with his pistol butt. The man's face and lips were badly cut. He was arrested by the same officer and taken to the station, where he is now held."

"None of His Business."

"Thursday afternoon, according to reports made to me by Corporal Baltimore of my military police force, a soldier of my command, was arrested by an officer. Corporal Baltimore who was nearby wearing his military badge asked the policeman purely for information why the man was reputed. "The policeman told him it was none of his business. He then, Corporal Baltimore and the arrested soldier both state, hit Baltimore over the head with his pistol butt. Corporal Baltimore ran up the street, the policeman firing at him as he fled. He took refuge in a house under a bed. The policeman followed; dragged him out, used further abusive language, and struck him twice more with his pistol."

"When the men in camp heard of these occurrences Thursday afternoon, it excited them greatly and they made open threats of retaliation."

General Hulen has a considerable force in the city and has been reinforced with 350 coast guardsmen from Galveston, who have five machine guns. General Hulen believes the situation is well in hand, and that there is small prospects of further trouble.

Captain Mattes Killed.

The killing of Captain Joseph W. Mattes of the Illinois Second Field Artillery, was accompanied by extreme cruelty on the part of his slayers, according to reports.

Wounded by rifle bullets, Captain Mattes was surrounded by the mutinying soldiers and his body was riddled with bullets, hacked and stabbed in many places by bayonets.

His skull was torn to bits, and when discovered it was almost unrecognizable.

W. S. Wise, while trying to save an unknown wounded man was shot three times in the left arm and once in the back. He said:

"I heard shooting and a man, whose name I never learned, fell apparently dying in the street. Blood was gushing from his breast. I rushed to his assistance, and called on an automobile driver for help. While we were trying to put the wounded man in the car, bullets splattered all about me. I could do nothing more, and soon became weak because of loss of blood."

TROOPS RUSHED TO HOUSTON

Galveston, Aug. 24.—Eight special interurban cars left here early today with United States troops enroute to Houston to assist in the control of the situation, resulting from last night's disorder. One light field company with a supply of ammunition was taken along. The troops are in command of Major Spinks. A detachment of Quartermaster troops also left for Houston this morning.

TO REMOVE TROOPS.

Washington, Aug. 24.—The negro troops engaged in the rioting from Houston will be withdrawn from Texas immediately, Secretary Baker today told Senator Sheppard of Texas. Reports from Major General Parker, commanding the southern division said the situation was under control, and that no further rioting was feared.

The secretary did not indicate to Senator Sheppard where the negro troops would be sent or what troops would be substituted to carry on construction work at the cantonment site.

Secretary Baker did not say whether the withdrawal of the 24th Infantry detachment from Texas forecasted a new policy which would keep negro troops out of the southern states.

Sheppard said he would ask that no negro troops, except those of Texas, be sent here for training.

POLICEMAN HOLDSIN FOUR AT BAY UNTIL ASSISTANCE COMES

San Francisco, Aug. 24.—Charges of murder and assault with the intent to commit murder were placed against four men arrested early today following the killing of James Waters, a conductor, and wounding of two others during a shooting affray between the car crew of the United Railway and strike sympathizers last night.

Eighteen men were arrested last night when they forced an entrance into the home of Policeman Manuel Rose, while his family was sleeping. The men told Rose they were searching for a striker. Rose held the men with a revolver, while his daughter telephoned for the police.

DESTROYED BY FIRE.

At Atlantic Port, Aug. 24.—The Standard Oil steamship Navajo, destroyed by fire at sea Aug. 15 while homeward bound, had an encounter with a submarine and sank the enemy vessel with her gun after a four hours' battle, according to members of the crew who arrived today on an American steamer. The destruction of the Navajo was caused by the explosion of a fuel pipe.
